

Adoption of any Pearson text for your course provides you, the instructor, with legal permission to reproduce Pearson-owned content items included within the text and/or Instructor Support Materials, such as images, art, tables, solutions/answers, test questions, etc., for certain limited purposes. Specifically, you may reproduce any of these Pearson-owned content items for the following purposes: inclusion in a password-protected course website, use as presentation material in your classroom lectures, or inclusion in paper tests/exams, hand-outs, or assignments that you create for the sole purpose of supporting your course syllabus. However, you may not photocopy, scan or reproduce any Pearson-owned content items included in the text or Instructor Support Materials for purposes of including them in coursepacks or other saleable works or products without the prior written consent of Pearson Canada.

Further, provided that the required conditions are met, all content in any Pearson text and the associated Instructor Support Materials (whether Pearson-owned or owned by third parties) can be used pursuant to Section 29.4 of the Copyright Act of Canada for the educational purposes described there.
